Two new Graduation Awards will be awarded to students this year from our Programs of Study. To celebrate Notre Dame Law School's new program of study in Law, Ethics, and Public Policy, and to highlight our students' achievements in pursuing these topics, the Law School has decided to give a Graduation Award to a 3L student who has shown dedication and excellence in this field. Also, the Notre Dame Law School will confer a Graduation Award for the Program of Study in Public Law to a graduating student who has excelled in pursuing studies in the field of public law.

From the Library

There’s a new addition to the Law Library’s technology offerings. In room scanner 2317 (behind the Rare Book Room), you can find an INDUS 9000 overhead scanner, ready to use! The scanner makes it possible to scan books or pages as PDFs or JPEGs, which can then be saved to a flash drive or emailed. The scanner has an easy-to-use, intuitive touchscreen, and complete directions can be found on the machine. For more information or assistance, ask a Circulation Desk attendant.

In preparation for the exams, laptops will not be available for check-out May 1 through May 15.

A Somber Note from London

Prof. John Adams, who had taught at Notre Dame's London Law Programme since 1999, passed away last Saturday. A scholar in the area of intellectual property and sales, Prof. Adams had a genuine affection for his students and at the end of each quarter took them for dinner and drinks at The Savage Club, a private gentleman's dining club which he was a member of. Prof. Adams was editor of the leading UK textbook on Sales and an occasional adviser to Parliament. On occasion, he would surprise his students by showing up to class in a three-piece suit, saying, "I'm just popping over to the House of Commons later." A loss by one part of the Notre Dame Law community is felt by all of us. Thank you, Prof. Adams, for all you did for our London students, past and present.
