Welcome Back to the Paradise City where the briefs are long and the work is gritty. For those overly sentimental 3L's, please note that this is the last first MMU of the Semester you're going to get, relish it.

FROM ME (I know I'm not administration)

Ladies and Gentlemen, I'm pleased to (re)announce that the Father Mike Show will be held March 2, 2016. For those of you who don't know, Fr. Mike is the Law School's largest fund-raiser in the form of an auction and talent show. Besides music, stand-up, dancing and acting, the Professors are known to typically throw in a few appearances. Please keep this on the radar and hone your talents as the day approaches. You'll be receiving an email with more information on how to sign up. Please note, we've gotten rid of last years awful male host and replaced him with Zach Milvo. Zach will be co-hosting with the wonderful Rachel Lynn. But seriously, get your talents (and your wallets) ready. There will be an initial meeting this Thursday at 12:30PM.

FROM JENN AND ANTHONY

Save the date! Barrister's Ball, our annual formal event during the spring semester featuring a sit-down dinner and dancing, will be Saturday, April 2, 2016 at Palais

The End of Europe

Sponsored by Federalist Society

Western Europe is now widely regarded as the Sick Man of the West. Whether it is persistent high unemployment, financial instability, an inability to control borders, the rise of populists on the left and right, or the specter of on-going Islamist terrorism, the Old Continent seems to be in a state of crisis. In this lecture, Dr. Samuel Greg, Research Director at the Acton Institute, will explore some of the deeper causes for these problems, illustrating how questions of identity are central to many of Europe's problems, and affect questions ranging from immigration policy to rule of law issues.

Can You Guess Who This Is?

A Day In The Life: The Fiesta Bowl

Lauren Mendoza

First off I'd like to thank Mike Bosco, without whom I would not have gotten to the stadium. It's also worth noting that Mike has two world-class Spaniels and his saintly grandmother made everyone scrambled eggs.

In the beginning Anthony Bui served chili at his tailgate. It is superb. I am so serious that I won't even attempt a chill/chili joke. It takes me a while to appreciate the stadium once I get inside because I'm still yapping about the chili. But then I realize how cool it is and immediately start salivating at the thought of how fire my Instagram will be later. It's an indoor stadium and I don't even feel trapped. Then I notice the sea of fans wearing red and feel slightly trapped.

But then I get to my seat in the Notre Dame student section and all is well because Mike Mercurio is out there representing. I'm wearing my ND Law baseball cap that I bought "for my mom" but then decided to keep, because that's what Christmas is all about. After ND's third touchdown everyone sends Mike Mercurio up for push-ups, since rules are rules. But around the 16th push-up a security guard comes down and yells at everyone to stop. I get the sense that the whole ND section secretly feels cool and rebellious after this incident, which makes me even prouder to be sitting amongst them.

Huge shoutout to Will Fuller's existence.

Another special shoutout to Brian Israel for coercing me into writing this during the game and also for photobombing my pictures like a snake. Also shoutout to Rachel Lynn for not being a total monster despite her Ohio State shirt, and for putting up with my snide comments.

Ultimately, we didn't win the game. But we showed up, did some push-ups, got yelled at, and went home with our dignity in tact.

Final Score:

Notre Dame Fighting Irish 28, Ohio State Whatever 44, Instagram Likes 50

PS - Just to give you a sense of a REAL day-in-the-life, the next day I sat in the emergency exit row of my flight and the attendant asked me if I was "at least 15 years old." For the record, I would like Anthony Bui to cater my quinceañera in March.
