Welcome to week 11. IIs, you've been here for 84 days (give or take). To put that in perspective, if your law school career were the gestational period of a puppy, you would have been born last month. For those of you who don't prefer to measure time in the life cycle of canines or years since the Crocodile Hunter died (nine years, two months, five days) you may be aware that it has now been 3 years and 10 months since the last time Notre Dame was in the BCS National Championship Game where the Irish played perpetual football villains Alabama. The hype has started that this year will be the year we go back, just like Jack and the island, and had Alabama lost, Notre Dame likely would have jumped into the coveted four spot. But 'Bama didn't lose and alas, here we are, waiting on Condoleezza Rice and Tom Osbourne to decide our fate. In the mean time, enjoy Notre Dame's free food opportunities....

THANKSGIVING BASKET DRIVE

The SBA Community Service subcommittee is hosting a thanksgiving Basket Drive. Our goal is to provide approximately 50 meals to the YWCA of Northern Indiana. To this, we need money. Approximately $1500. Here is the gofundme for it. <https://www.gofundme.com/NDThanksgiving> . If you can, a donation would be greatly appreciated. I can't imagine how much it may mean to a family in need to be able to have a full Thanksgiving dinner.

PEOPLE WHO CAN BEAT US UP

Ashley Berding, Kaitlin Abrams and Kristen Hatter all won their Baraka Bouts last night. Ipso facto (I don't know what that means but it just kinda sounds right, you know?) don't sass them because they can take you.

Number #5 ranked Notre Dame played Pittsburgh this week at John Kerry Heinz Field. This was considered the last trap game of the season for the Irish before they head to Stanford in 3 weeks. As some of you may remember, Pitt had our number 2 years ago when they upset a then 7-2 team led by Tommy Rees. I don't know much about Pitt or the city of Pittsburgh, but it apparently is the worst city in Pennsylvania according to Philly native Tony Calvano.

Superstar CJ Prosise suffered a shoulder injury and a possible concussion. Coach Kelly said CJ should back next week, but Kelly would say otherwise if he got a sneak peek at the upcoming Christmas movie "Concussion" starring the Fresh Prince of Wild Wild West. In my humble opinion, let's keep CJ on the sidelines until the Stanford game. We don't want to risk his health in two meaningless games not only for us, but for him as well. Pull him out because safety first.

Other than that, Notre Dame played a masterful game with Kizer to Fuller TDs. When throwing those balls deep, Kizer is showing us that he is ND's QB of the future and that he may unfortunately force Zaire to transfer. Backup QB Brandon Wimbush, however, is showing us that he still has a ton of learning to do when he fumbled the ball away in garbage time. On the flip side, our defense can sometimes be frustrating to watch when they let guys get wide open.

We'll be fine for the next two weeks, but I have my eye on RB McCaffrey and Stanford on Nov. 28. This showdown in 3 weeks will be as big as the rumored Spring 2016 showdown between Brian Israel and the Scooter Bandit.

Shout out to the 3Ls who took the MPRE in Valpo/Kalamazoo and rushed back to South Bend to catch the game. Priorities. You da real ND fans. Last home game this weekend versus Wake Forest. Show up. Go Irish.

Scooter bandit: still at large.
