Lionel Hutz: Uh-oh. We've drawn Judge Snyder.

Marge: Is that bad?

Lionel Hutz: Well, he's kind of had it in for me, since I kinda ran over his dog.

Marge: You did?

Lionel Hutz: Well, replace the word "kinda" with the word "repeatedly," and the word "dog" with "son."

MISCELLANEOUS!!!

- Take note everyone, the MMU is not just for announcing events, if you have general announcements (even 1L/2L/3L class specific announcements) you can submit those as well. No guarantee that all announcements are included, but it doesn't hurt to ask. Examples of announcements include:
 - Someone (student/faculty/staff) or some group has received an award
 - Heather, will you marry me? --Chris
 - Sharing pictures and details from a successful group function or social get together that would be nice to highlight.
 - "In need of character witnesses for my bar application, preference given to those who don't know me."
- The Snite Art Museum (which is in between the law school and the football stadium for those of you who have never been) has the "Roaring Twenties Exuberance and Depression Era Extravagance” exhibit showing. The exhibit showcases classic cars from the Jack B. Smith (formerly Nimble) automobile collection. No cost to visit.

- Want to be a mock trial coach? How can you turn down these kids? There are some wonderful high school freshman seeking a mock trial coach. There are actually a couple teams seeking a coach. No experience in mock trial is necessary to be a coach. If you are interested please contact Professor Tidmarsh.

- We have an NCAA Women of the Year Finalist at Notre Dame Law School. Alexa Baltes, a 1L, is a former Division III basketball player from Illinois Wesleyan and has been recognized for her commitment to service. Check it out...AND GOOD LUCK TO ALEXA. <http://www.ncaa.org/about/resources/events/awards/woman-year-finalist-alexa-baltes>

- SBA would like to announce that Law School merchandise is now being sold in the Commons on a daily basis between 12:30 - 1:30. We have some new shirts in and are expecting several new items over the next few weeks. Check it out.

GET TO KNOW FACULTY/STAFF/STUDENT

Tiye Kinlow has not developed a British accent even though those limeys gave it their best go while she spent last year in London. When I asked her in the computer lab if she was a 1L as I had not met her before, she responded with a simple, “Daffadown Dilly. Why would I be reading International Transactions if I was a 1L. Loaf of Bread!” Yep, London without a doubt did not rub off on her. You will be hard pressed to find someone more supportive of the London program and if you have questions you should reach out to her. Tiye, named for an Egyptian queen (she is not Egyptian) is a 3L from Washington D.C. who loves the city dearly. She grew up active in politics and loves the history and symbolism of the city. Also, she doesn’t just “like” French fries, she “LOVES” them. She desperately wants to meet a baby elephant. She suggests you YouTube and listen to the “baby elephant walk,” as it is a catchy tune. If you see Tiye, suggest a conversation over french fries or if you have a baby elephant, don’t be selfish!

LOST AND FOUND ITEM OF THE WEEK

One of these items is a Fitbit and the other is a roll of blue tape. Can you pick which one is which? Both need their owners to claim them at the Circulation Desk. Someone out there is falling behind in their daily step goals and someone else is unable to stick two things together.

*Update: Success! The Notre Dame jacket featured in last week's MMU has been claimed. The claimant apparently wishes to remain anonymous, but when you give in and wear it, we will all know!

Please e-mail me at mwine@nd.edu whenever we have a reunion story so we can share the exciting and heartwarming news with everyone.
