All volunteers will receive priority registration for ITA or Deposition skills classes next year.

WHERE: St. Joseph County Courthouse in downtown South Bend, IN. Street parking is available.

SONG OF THE WEEK - This Land - Gary Clark Jr.

MEME OF THE WEEK -

PUNXSUTAWNEY PHIL PREDICTS SIX MORE
WEEKS OF CIVILIZATION.

1L OF THE WEEK

The 1L of the week is JP Simon. He says his real name is John Paul, but J.P. Which is good for me, because that's one less person in the law school with a four-letter first name. Buy this man a coffee, because he is a delight.

Q: Where are you from?

A: Chicago. Clark/Division.

Q: Where did you attend undergrad?

A: Fairfield University in Connecticut.

Q: What's your favorite non-law school activity?

A: God, I don't know if I have time for those anymore. I like to read, I'm trying to do a book a week, mostly fiction. Right now, I'm working on The Black Jacobins, by C.L.R. James. It's about the Haitian Revolution. It's nonfiction but very interesting. I never had that subject in world history or anything, and it's a very important time period; it was kind of a spillover from the French Revolution. The way Haiti took those ideas and ran with it is really, really cool.

Q: How did you spend your cold day(s)?

A: I slept. I slept like 18 hours on Wednesday.

Q: Tell me about the last thing you cooked.

A: The last thing I cooked - you're catching me on a good day - the last thing I cooked was shrimp fajitas. I found a recipe and everything. I don't normally do that. I think I did okay.

Q: If you could body swap with anyone for one day, who would you swap with?

A: That's hard. Jeez. I have no idea who I.... OH! I think it would have to be, like, someone with actual musical talent. It would be so cool to experience that. I don't know who though... maybe I'd get in Chance the Rapper's body to get to feel like how it is to actually rap well.

Q: What's your guilty pleasure?

A: In the bakery section at Martins, they have these mini-brownies. Without fail, everytime I go grocery shopping, they end up in my basket. I don't know how it happens.

* LIGHTNING ROUND*

Q: Shrimp or Crab?

A: Crab.

Q: Moose or Mice?

A: Moose.

Q: Chris Hemsworth or Chrissie Tiegen?

A: Chrissie Tiegen.

Q: ChristMASS or ChristMUSS?

A: ChristMASS.

Q: What should my firstborn's name be?

A: Uhhh, Bill Green II

Q: Do you have anything else you'd like to say to all of your fans?

A: You know - they already know what it is.

Q: Who should be 1L of the week next week?

A: Caitlin Doermer. Go Jaguars.

Long Reads of the Week

- The Paths of Rhythm

- A Tribe Called Quest's pioneering music is one of many filaments that connects Americans of color with each other now and back through time.
- One Lawyer, One Day, 194 Felony Cases
 - This is an atrocity.
 - "The bottom line: Mr. Talaska would have needed almost 10,000 hours, or five work-years, to handle the 194 felony cases he had on that April day alone, not to mention the dozens more he would be assigned that year. (The analysis did not include one death-penalty case on his roster, the most time-consuming type of case.)"
- Let Children Get Bored Again
 - Boredom teaches us that life isn't a parade of amusements. More important, it spawns creativity and self-sufficiency.
 - I normally wouldn't put straight opinion down here, but for some reason this one spoke to me in a "wow, I'm getting old" type of way. Never thought about boredom as a good vs. bad thing before, but after lingering in my own boredom on the topic, I conclude that it is good.
- Into the Dark
 - There were four options for getting the trapped Thai soccer players out of the flooded cave: the unrealistic one, the deadly one, the torturous one, and the mad one. Sometimes, madness works. The inside story of an improbable team of divers, a near-impossible plan and the rescue of 12 boys from a Thai cave
- When Even The Greatest Of Writers Grapples With Self-Doubt
 - For anyone that does creative work, Gabrielle Bellot's poetic piece at LitHub is a salve for the times when we're plagued by artistic self-doubt. In relaying her own struggles and in deconstructing the work of W.B. Yeats and Derek Walcott, Bellot finds solace and inspiration in two other writers who also sought to shed the "thick coats of impostors."
