- Hesburgh Library
  - Sunday through Thursday, 7:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Health & Wellness Information

Wellness in Mind - Need some support? Remember that your Wellness Consultant, Stella Miller, is here for you. Drop her a line at stella.miller@nd.edu or make an appointment at www.calendly.com/stellamiller.

Also, we encourage you to be mindful of the relaxation resources available at the McDonald Center for Student Well-Being. These include yoga, Koru Mindfulness, the Sleep Program, and restorative spaces like the Living Room, Break Room, and Fort. Health support services are always available at University Health Services and the University Counseling Center.

Interested in feeling more mindful, more rested, and less stressed? Registration is open now for McWell's free Koru Mindfulness classes! Koru is an evidence-based mindfulness program developed specifically for college students by experts at Duke University. By joining Koru, you'll commit to four 75-minute sessions that take place once per week for four consecutive weeks and learn a variety of mindfulness skills. It's short and sweet but will leave a lasting impact! Go to the McWell website for details and to sign up!

COVID Corner

Reminders of these key COVID protocols for the Law buildings:

More information is on the Law School's website HERE or at here.nd.edu.

- Eating is only permitted in the Commons and South Reading Room. You cannot eat in the classrooms or Library study spaces. You may remove your mask only during the time in which you are actively eating. Please do not sit in the Commons or South Reading Room during the 12 PM - 2 PM lunch time unless you are eating so that there are spaces for those who want to eat their lunch to go. You may study in these spaces (with your mask on) during other times.
- All seating during classes is assigned. Please follow your professors' instructions for how to record your seat this week in Sakai for contract tracing purposes. Seating charts will be finalized after add/drop.
- All in-person meetings with faculty and staff must be scheduled. Your professors will send you information about how to schedule appointments with them. You can schedule appointments with staff through the links below:
  - CDO: through IrishLink
  - Student Services (Christine Holst-Haley): <https://calendly.com/ndls-cholst>
  - IT Support (Eric McCartney): <https://calendly.com/emccartn>
  - Wellness Consultant (Stella Miller): <https://calendly.com/stellamiller>
  - Registrar (Jenny Fox): No in-person meetings, email Jenny at jenniferfox@nd.edu with questions or to set up a phone or Zoom call.

A Message From the Editor

Good Morning NDLS!

Welcome back to the law school my precious. That works in so many ways because 1) technically we've gone and come back since the last time we spoke, and 2) this would have been our first day of school if the world wasn't infectious. So, welcome back. Hope you've all been well. Relaxed. Enjoying these uneventful times we're living in!

I hope that sarcasm was obvious. I mean, y'all—it feels like it's been a month and a half since last Monday. There's officially a Democratic presidential ticket nomination, California is literally burning, USPS is not making big changes any more, the Tiger King Zoo shut down (what a loss), and Alaskans are probably going to be making more in their monthly checks to remain in a place so cold. And that's just the shortest of lists. But also what's happened in the past week is Tim McGraw came out with a new album, I saw a wedding party taking pictures in front of Touchdown Jesus, learned the temperature of the St. Joseph's River is currently very pleasant, and burrata exists. But then I also fell off an elevated deck from laughing too animatedly. But I walked away scot-free and still laughing, so really, I'm calling the whole thing a draw. This week I'm aiming for the same, if not better.

Now to capitalize on a perk of being the almighty Secretary I didn't know of until last week. I can pick you educated people's brains for solutions to my problems (shout out to Heidi for sharing an acne treatment spray for my persistent chin problems). This week I am genuinely interested in any information anyone holds about hanging curtains in an apartment such that I don't have to drill holes into any part of the wall. After the second weekend here I am now acutely aware that the sun is up and about at 8:00am and I can't sleep past that time in my room. It shines like the top of the Chrysler Building in that place and I need to sleep longer at least one day a week. Yes, I take a (or multiple) 10-60 minute nap(s) almost every day, but that is not the same as sleeping nine hours straight. So please, for the love of all that is good and well rested, send me solutions to my problem and have winning week.

Go Irish!

Krystal

1L OF THE WEEK

This week's 1L of the Week is Elizabeth Wentross. She was an absolute delight to speak with yesterday evening, and I am sure she would be any other day or time when any good samaritan buys the girl a coffee for a chat.

Q: Where is your hometown?

A: I am originally from Portland, Oregon.

Q: Where did you attend undergrad?

A: Syracuse, and I doubled majored in International Relations and Spanish.

*Obviously I assumed Elizabeth had studied abroad. I was correct, she did a stint in Santiago, Chile, which I think is just too cool.

Q: What did you do this summer?

A: I took two years off between undergrad and law school where I worked for a firm in DC. This summer I worked for the firm, but virtually. So I worked from home in Portland and took two weeks off camping and doing outdoorsy things to take a little break before school started.

Q: What's the craziest thing that happened to you last week?

A: I don't know if anything crazy happened. I was cold called for the first time. It was in Criminal Law and it was way less painful than I thought it would be. Though, it is interesting to think you know something and then realize you make no sense when you're talking out loud. But it did make me feel like I am officially in law school.

Q: It's week three of law school. Where are you planning your bar trip?

A: Oh my gah I can't even think past this semester! That is contingent upon me getting that far and currently I'm looking more short term. But I would like to go to Peru one day. I was supposed to go this December but with COVID that's not going to happen now.

Q: What is the best dish you cook? The worst?

A: I think I am a very good cook. I am a big steak person...I think that's the best thing I cook, and the biggest treat I make for myself. Baking is probably my worst. There is just no room to do your own thing, to be being spontaneous.

Q: What animal do you think is the most polite?

A: Giraffes I think. They seem so sweet and nice and polite.

Q: Would you rather meet Big Foot, a Yeti, a Swamp Monster, or Godzilla?

A: Oh Big Foot, for sure.

Q: What's the best hamburger you've ever had?

A: At home in Portland...a place called Tilt. Medium rare, everything on it.

Q: Do you have anything else you'd like to say to all of your fans?

A: I'm glad we're going to be back in person this week and I'm looking forward to seeing everyone in person.

Q: Who do you nominate to talk to me next week because of my personal fear of picking a random 1L to ask?

A: Bethany Hohenstein

3LOL

This week's 3LOL is none other than The Jeremy Roho. If you haven't met him or don't know him, that's weird because he is every bit the energy you've been missing in your life. Just look at him here, smiling in front of one of the most ancient structures in the world (Stonehenge) before he was a part of the group of us that were tragically sent home from London last semester. What a joy. What a spirit. What a Buffalo dude who learned how to surf the waves this summer in LA.

That is right, Mr. Roho spent the summer, and through the first week of school, working for a firm in L.A. As a result, he knows all of the tips, tricks, ins, and outs of virtual networking. Paint and sip a Mountain Sunset night? Wear a Bob Ross blue shirt and use too much yellow in the sunset. Trivia escape room with a narrator? Make sure someone else on the team knows how to do simple math. The key to his success? A dedication to take out and being a considerate person who names all of his stories.

Example A, "Jeremy in the Dallas Airport Incident." On his way back to South Bend after a call back in L.A., Jeremy was in the Dallas Airport waiting on his layover flight when he thought he should send his thank you emails immediately. He was so dedicated to his consideration of the firm's time he missed the fact his flight was transferred gates, and by the time he got there, the door had been closed for two minutes. He might have lost $300 on a hotel and new flight, but he got the job.

Example B, "The Arnold Palmer Incident." As many of you know, NDLS alumni will host current law students in their area for mock interviews over the summer. Being the considerate gentleman he is, Jeremy based his lunch order off of the type and price range of the partner ordering. The partner ordered an Arnold Palmer. Not know what that is, but assuming it was a cocktail of sorts, Jeremy ordered a relatively pricy glass of wine. Upon the drinks being delivered Jeremy learned his faux pas and profusely apologize for taking advantage of the partner alum's wallet. Come to find out the partner alum had made the exact same mistake as a law student with an Arnold Palmer. So PSA to everyone reading this—an Arnold Palmer is tea and lemonade, not a cocktail.

Among other things Jeremy hopes everyone learns the easy way instead of the hard way: always check time zones, don't change your phone clock to military time to impress anyone if you can't read it, the ND campus does not (at least last year) accept American Express cards (ask him about the "American Express Incident," and that the legal community is a small one. Your classmates and professors are your first real step into the community, so be nice to each other. And ask him about the best take out, because he eats it twice a day.
