News and Notes

Happy New Year!

Tricia Bellia has been appointed the William J. and Dorothy K. O'Neill Professorship, formerly held by Bob Blakey.

Nicole Garnett has been appointed to the John P. Murphy Foundation Professorship, formerly held by Cathy Kaveny.

Lloyd Mayer was quoted in the Huffington Post article New IRS Rules On Dark Money Likely Won't Be Ready Before 2016 Election on January 5.

Judy Fox was quoted in the CardHub article Paying Debt in Collections: When to Do It, How to Pay & Expert Tips.

Martijn Cremers was quoted in the Time article New Study Identifies the Most Underappreciated Investment Skill on January 5.

Beth Klein is collecting Christmas card fronts for her church group. If you'd like to donate yours, please drop them into inter-campus mail to Beth Klein, Law Library.

The Eck Commons has new carpet! Carpet elves were busy installing it over break.

A new interactive Career Placement Map came online on the NDLS web site on December 22. It displays where graduates from a state are employed, the home state of graduates employed in a state, and types of employment for graduates in a selected state. This should be a very useful tool for prospective students.

Dean's Bookshelf

Recently, Barry Cushman contributed an electronic version of a recent essay to the virtual Bookshelf.

Barry's essay is an elegantly reasoned response to a position taken by Daniel Ernst of Georgetown Law concerning the timing of a visit by Chief Justice Hughes and his wife to the summer home of Justice Owen Roberts. Ernst's dating of the event, if correct, lends some credence to his argument about the substance of the conversation. To this reader, Barry appears to carry the day. For details, I refer you to the essay. The cite is:

Barry Cushman, Interpreting Secretary Perkins, Green Bag, 18 Green Bag 2d 13-25 (2014).

Many thanks and congratulations to Barry.
