THE COLLEGE OF LAW

In accordance with the extensive program outlined by President Deeb, on Friday, November 11, Mr. T. O'Meara, a law graduate of 1901, and now practicing in West Bend, Wisconsin, spoke extemporaneously to members of the Law Club. Mr. O'Meara reminisced on the early days of the Notre Dame Law School, and recounted many interesting details of his trial and appellate practice. The much maligned "small town" found an ardent defender in Mr. O'Meara who stated that he would advise young lawyers to practice in a small community rather than attempt to "catch on" in a larger city. Deviating from the practice of law, he struck what might be termed an encouraging note (to law students) when he stated that since the world will never be perfect there will always be business for the lawyer. The
