Experiencing freedom after 30 years on death row

Anthony Ray Hinton, a man who spent 30 years on Alabama's death row for crimes he didn't commit, delivered a powerful message to students last week. Read his story here.

ND Law Alum And Wife Make a Difference Through Fostering, Adoption

Judge Joseph L. Falvey Jr., '81, '87 J.D. has had a long and distinguished legal career in the military that culminated earlier this year with his confirmation as a judge of the United States Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims. But his biggest impact has been in his family life. He and his wife, Anne have served as foster parents for fifteen children, five of whom they have adopted, raising them along with four biological children. Read their amazing story here.

Migrant caravan not an 'invasion' — US militarism partly to blame, says expert

Mary Ellen O'Connell recently provided comments about a caravan of Central Americans headed for the U.S.-Mexico border saying the migrants pose no national security threat to America. Read her comments here.
