NDLS WELCOMES
NEW CLASS

The Law School community welcomed the class of 2002 on August 21. The 183 members of the class hail from 39 different states and 2 foreign countries, and represent 107 undergraduate schools. Women constitute 40.8% of the class. Diversity students make up 18% of the class. Seventy-seven percent of the class graduated with academic honors or as a member of their school’s dean’s list.

Members of the class have exhibited leadership and a commitment to helping others through various volunteer and employment experiences. One has worked with the Cabrini Mission Corps as a missionary volunteer and child advocate in Argentina, another with orphans in Peru, and yet another with the Precious Blood Missionary in Tanzania. One class member spent two years as a Catholic Lay Missionary in Japan and another spent two years in Mexico. In the class are Holy Cross Associates from the Central Arizona Shelter Services, Catholic Community Services in Colorado, and Family Services in the South Bend Center for the Homeless. A legislative intern for the U.S. Senate joins the class, as does a former editor for Hallmark Cards, as well as an individual who worked in the Department of Defense in Saudi Arabia.

A three-year supporter of the Navajo Nation Reservation who worked for indigenous peoples’ rights joins the class. A number of the class members participated in Greenpeace and Habitat for Humanity, while others tutored abused children, counseled prison inmates, volunteered at homeless shelters, and participated in Teach for America. One of the class members worked in the entertainment industry, both in the U.S. and abroad. Many of the class members are fluent in a second language, such as Spanish, French, Portuguese, and Arabic. Several participated in study-abroad programs. The 1998-99 University of Notre Dame Leprechaun is also one of the class members.

The class of 2002 comprises leaders dedicated to ethics, helping others, and influencing society through the practice of law. Welcome to all!

More than fifty volunteers from the second- and third-year law classes assisted with enrollment and orientation to welcome the incoming class of JD and LLM students and visiting scholars from Canada, Japan and Austria. New students were greeted with a reception on Friday, August 20 and were formally welcomed by Dean O’Hara on Saturday, August 21, prior to enrollment. NDLS celebrated the start of the new academic year with a Mass and Dean’s Picnic for faculty and students on Sunday, August 29. Chris Mugica, chairman of the Orientation Committee, and Shazzie Naseem, president of SBA, spearheaded the orientation effort.

NDLS Teacher Of

The Year:
On May 21 Dean O’Hara announced the makeup of her administrative team. In her memo she noted that she had "extended invitations to all the current Associate Deans to remain in place. I am happy to report that Roger Jacobs and Fr. Jim McDonald have agreed to stay in their current positions." Both Tex Dutile and Jimmy Gurulé "welcomed the transition in deans as an opportunity to return to full-time teaching."

Jack Pratt has become executive associate dean. Vince Rougeau will serve as associate dean for academic affairs. Dean O’Hara thanked them both for "their willingness to work with me, as well as for the gifts. . . each of them will bring to their respective positions."

Occupying a new position, Ann Firth will serve as executive assistant to the dean. Ann, NDLS ‘84, practiced a year in Chicago before joining the Office of Student Affairs at Notre Dame. From 1985 to 1992 she served as the department head for the Office of Residence Life. In 1992 she was promoted to the senior staff of the Office of Student Affairs. Since that date, she has served as assistant to the vice-president, carrying a wide range of responsibilities. Ann’s husband, John Firth, NDLS ‘84, is vice-president and general counsel of Quality Dining. Ann and John have five children ranging in age from eleven years down to eighteen months.

On July 19 Diane Collins began her duties as the senior administrative assistant in the Dean’s Office. For the past five years, Diane served as a human-resources administrator for Martin’s Super Markets.

David T. Link, for twenty-four years the dean at NDLS, has been named associate vice-president for academic affairs of the University of St. Thomas, in Minnesota, and founding dean of the University’s Law School. During his time at St. Thomas, he will also serve as vice-president for academic affairs and academic dean at St. Augustine University of South Africa.

The University of St. Thomas is a Catholic University, established in 1885 and affiliated with the Archdiocese of St.
Paul and Minneapolis. Its original law school closed during the Great Depression. Dave will re-open the Law School, establish a strong and pervasive Catholic identity for the school, develop a values-oriented professional curriculum, and hire the initial faculty.

The University of St. Augustine of South Africa, a recently chartered private university, is South Africa’s first Catholic University. Dean Link delivered a lecture at the institution’s inaugural ceremonies in July.

Says Dave: “It is the perfect capstone to my life at Notre Dame. It is a great honor to be called to spread the Catholic intellectual tradition to other institutions. . . . I want to make it clear that I am not leaving Notre Dame. I am going out with ‘cuttings’ from Notre Dame to start new vineyards.”

Best of luck to Dave and Barbara as they embark on this new adventure.

ANNE HAMILTON APPOINTED LAW SCHOOL REGISTRAR

Associate Dean Vincent Rougeau announced August 20 that Anne Hamilton has assumed the duties of the Law School Registrar. In this position, which has recently been reviewed and changed to reflect the needs of the Law School, Ms. Hamilton will work closely with Dean Rougeau to insure efficient management of various matters that fall under his responsibility as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

Ms. Hamilton’s new role makes her responsible for assisting in planning, organizing, and managing the academic program. This responsibility includes conducting registration and enrollment for all students, organizing orientation and commencement, processing and maintaining student records, and assisting Dean Rougeau in advising and counseling students on certain academic issues. Prior to assuming her new duties, Ms. Hamilton served NDLS long and well as director of admissions.

NDLS ALUM CONFIRMED TO ELEVENTH CIRCUIT; SECOND ALUM NOMINATED TO SEVENTH CIRCUIT

On July 30, Tampa-based U.S. Attorney Charles R. Wilson, NDLS ’79 and a member of the Law School’s Advisory Council, received confirmation to a judgeship on the Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit. President Clinton nominated Judge Wilson in May. Judge Wilson, a former Hillsborough County (Florida) judge, has been U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Florida for the past five years.

On August 6 President Clinton nominated U.S. District Judge Ann Claire Williams, NDLS ’75 and a member of Notre Dame’s Board of Trustees, to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. Judge Williams has served in the Northern District of Illinois since 1985. Congratulations to both!
NDLS PROF APPEARS
WOODWARD BOOK

Bill Kelley figures prominently in Bob Woodward's book, Shadow: Five Presidents and the Legacy of Watergate. According to Woodward, Bill and another staffer went to Ken Starr to urge a less graphic account of the President's conduct--"They didn't need to prove what Clinton no longer denied." When Starr insisted on retaining the specific narrative, the two staffers argued, unsuccessfully, that the "grounds" (for impeachment) section should precede it. Bill won't confirm or deny Woodward's account, but he does say that Woodward's portrayal of Starr's demeanor bears little resemblance to reality.

NDLS FACULTY MEMBERS TO SERVE ON UNIVERSITY
TASK FORCES

Initiated at the direction of Notre Dame’s president, Father Edward Malloy, a Plan for Academic Advance will deploy eight separate task forces. The Plan will build on the University’s progress to date in achieving goals of the Colloquy for the Year 2000 and set out new guidelines in Notre Dame’s quest for excellence.

NDLS profs will play important roles on several of the committees. Carol Mooney and Jimmy Gurulé will co-chair the Task Force on Diversity and Community. Vince Rougeau will serve as a member of that Task Force. Dave Link has been named a member of the Task Force on Ethics. Finally, Cathy Kaveny and Steven Smith will work with the Task Force on Enriching Catholic Intellectual Life.

GARY HALL,
NDLS ALUM, NAMED
WHITE HOUSE FELLOW
The White House announced today the selection of sixteen winners for the 1999-2000 White House Fellowship Program. Among the winners: Gary Hall, NDLS ’96. Mr. Hall practices with Gardner, Carton & Douglas, in Chicago. He grew up in inner-city Chicago and was graduated from Howard University. While at NDLS, he studied at the Concannon International Law Centre in London, where he worked as an extern with the law firm of Mayer, Brown & Platt. At Gardner, he provides legal counsel on a variety of corporate-finance matters, including equity and debt, public offers, mergers and acquisitions and SEC compliance.

Prior to law school, Mr. Hall worked as a senior budget analyst in Chicago Mayor Richard Daley’s Office of Budget and Management and later as a financial officer of real estate for the Department of General Services. He was the youngest person ever selected to participate in the City’s Intergovernmental Executive Development Program. He founded Imani, a non-profit organization that raises funds and public awareness for such causes as famine in Somalia and HIV-AIDS in minority communities. He spearheaded the first fund-raising campaign for the Chicago Chapter of 100 Black Men to expand its mentoring and tutoring programs and to endow scholarships for youth in impoverished Chicago neighborhoods.

The White House Fellowship Program, established by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964, is designed to provide gifted and highly motivated Americans who are early in their chosen careers with first-hand experience of governing the nation and a sense of personal involvement in the leadership of society. During their year of service, the Fellows work closely with leaders in government to help draft and review legislation, research various public-policy initiatives, respond to Congressional inquiries, write speeches, and conduct policy briefings. The Fellows serve the President as full-time, paid special assistants to Cabinet members and senior White House staff.

NEWS FROM THE LEGAL AID CLINIC

Barbara Szweda took eight students to South Texas over Spring Break to do immigration work at ProBAR and Proyecto Libertad. (Chuck Roth, NDLS ’96, works with Proyecto Libertad). These pro bono organizations help people arriving in the United States or who are here and do not have status. The students who joined Barbara were: Danny Inquilla, Nita Upadye, Susan Foxon, Tammy Greenwald, George Perez, Ming Sun, Ling Yang, and Teresita Mercado. They all had taken Immigration Law and, except for Tammy, served in the Immigration Clinic.

George and Teresita tried a cancellation–of–removal case. Ming tried several Honduran children's cases. Danny and Susan tried an asylum case. All were complimented for their skill by the trial judge. Nita, Tammy and Barbara put together four Cuban asylum cases, were successful on two, and await the outcome of the two others. Ling was the master researcher and writer. Says Barbara: "We worked long hours, but we met some wonderful people and heard some incredible stories of hardship and courage."

She adds: "We also had the incredible opportunity to see what our clients go through before they get to our offices. We met with immigration officials who gave us a tour of the border and detention centers, and some insight into how officials operate. We all got the chance to ride along with the border patrol at night and to use their high-tech equipment in the apprehension of border crossers. Despite the hard work, we all agreed it should become a regular experience for any student wanting to practice immigration law."

Barbara Szweda prevailed in an immigration case before the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. The case involved a Ukrainian Christian Fundamentalist scheduled to be deported. The court vacated the deportation order and remanded the case to the lower court with instructions. Says Barbara: "That was a nail-biter!"

FACULTY

Joe testified before the same Subcommittee on the same topic on July 7 in the Cleveland, Ohio, City Council Community Room.

Joe published Coltec-B.F. Goodrich merger would be anti-competitive, in the July 8 issue of The South Bend Tribune.
Geoffrey Bennett wrote Criminal Procedure and Sentencing for The All England Law Reports Annual Review.

On June 9 Bob Blakey argued United States v. Jankowski in the Ninth Circuit. The case dealt with a question Bob argued in the Supreme Court in NOW v. Scheidler, but the Court there did not reach the meaning of "obtain" in extortion under the Hobbs Act. Bob said he thought the argument went well—until he read, the next day, United States v. Arena, Jankowski’s parallel prosecution in the Second Circuit. The Second Circuit squarely rejected Bob’s arguments.

On July 7, however, the Ninth Circuit unanimously reversed the conviction of John Yankowski for a violation of the Hobbs Act. The Court accepted Bob’s argument, holding that violence without proof of "extortion" is insufficient for conviction under the Act.

Bob will teach at the University of Michigan Law School in the Winter term. Michigan faced an emergency situation when Prof. Yale Kamisar suffered a heart attack earlier this spring.

On June 23, Bob gave a lecture to the State Attorney’s Office in Cook County: "The Kennedy Assassination—Lessons for Homicide Investigations."

On July 15, the Second Circuit refused to grant rehearing en banc in United States v. Lynch, an appeal that Bob won on double-jeopardy grounds earlier this year. The Court split six to six. The prosecution charged criminal contempt on the part of George E. Lynch, a bishop, and Christopher Moscinski, a Franciscan friar. Both were arrested in May 1995 after they knelt and prayed in the driveway of the Women’s Medical Pavilion, an abortion clinic in Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., despite an injunction under the FACE Act barring them from blocking access. In light of the Second Circuit split, the Government will likely petition for certiorari to the Supreme Court. Bob thinks it quite likely that the Court will take the case.

Professor Gerry Bradley and his wife Pam are the proud parents of a new baby boy, Brendan Bradley, born Sunday night, June 13. The baby weighed eight pounds, three ounces. Mom, dad and baby all did fine. Congratulations!!

Congratulations to Tom and Joanne Broden who, at a recent family reunion, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary!

Davy Carozza, father of Paolo Carozza, died on June 22 in the presence of Paolo and other members of the Carozza family. The funeral Mass took place on June 26 at St. Luke’s Church in Westport, Connecticut. Please keep the entire Carozza family in your thoughts and prayers.

Judge Dees notes that this is a "hot topic for lawyers who file Chapter 13 cases, and Congress is presently considering legislation to force more people to choose Chapter 13 reorganization rather than Chapter 7 liquidation."

Kathy Kaveny was the focus of an article, entitled "Where Catholicism and Law Intersect," in the August 13 issue of The Nation. The article elaborates upon Kathy’s concern that lawyers’ sixty-hour work weeks "and the concept of ‘billable hours’ clash with a Christian understanding of time."
Don Kommers published Celebrating 50 Years of Germany’s Basic Law, in The Wall Street Journal (Europe) on May 27.

Former NDLS Dean William D. Lawless was featured in an article entitled All Rise: At 77, “Retired” Judge Builds Up Mediation Network, in the August 9 edition of the Orange County Business Journal. Judge Lawless is “of counsel” to the plaintiff’s law firm of Capretz & Associates in Newport Beach, California. Nonetheless, he spends the majority of his time running Judge-Net, a mediation service he instituted seven years ago. In addition to all of this, Judge Lawless is a part-time professor at Trinity Law School in Santa Ana, California.

Captain and Mrs. McLean announce the arrival of a great-grandson, Casey Thomas Gossett, born July 20 to the McLeans’ daughter, Holly, and her husband, Tom Gossett. Casey weighed seven pounds, five ounces at birth. Congratulations to all!

On June 17, Father John Pearson celebrated a Memorial Mass for Sandra Rowe, the wife of T. Kent Rowe, Sr., an NDLS alum and former adjunct prof at the Law School. The Mass took place at Sacred Heart on campus.

On August 4, Charlie Rice took part in a panel discussion entitled "How Far Can the Communities and Police Go?" The panel formed part of a conference to discuss solutions to loitering, a discussion pervaded by the recent decision of the U.S. Supreme Court finding unconstitutional a Chicago ordinance designed to curb gang-related crime. Despite the decision, Charlie urged the audience away from despair: "It’s interesting that the justices are going out of their way to say, hey, there are ways to do this."

Pat Schiltz was interviewed in The American Lawyer concerning his law-review article, On Being A Happy, Healthy, and Ethical Member of an Unhappy, Unhealthy, and Unethical Profession, published in the Vanderbilt Law Review. Asked why money becomes an obsession at big firms, Pat said: "The bigger a firm is, the harder it is for its members to agree on anything other than money. In other words, for a firm to develop a culture that resists the general obsession with money, there has to be a consensus or a near consensus on something else. . . . Not every lawyer in a big firm may value money more than anything, but money is the one thing that everyone values at least somewhat. So it becomes the only currency at big firms."

Pat's article has caused considerable controversy. It was the sole subject of Michael E. Goldhaber's column, "Associates," in the August 16 issue of The National Law Journal.

In June, The Vanderbilt Law Review structured a symposium around the article. Six law professors and two practicing lawyers wrote responses to Pat's article; Pat wrote a reply to those responses. A lengthy excerpt from Pat's article will appear in the next edition of the leading legal-ethics textbook.

Pat served as a Visiting Fellow at Cornell Law School on March 31 and April 1. He conducted a faculty workshop on "Making Moral Lawyers," spoke to the student body on "Everything You Should Know About Large Law Firms," taught a two-hour seminar on "Lawyers and the Legal Profession," and taught a one-hour seminar on "Lawyers and Clients." His visit to Cornell was sponsored by the Keck Focus on Legal Ethics Program.

Pat has been appointed to serve as a legal advisor to the Congregation of Holy Cross.

The Supreme Court of Japan will translate into Japanese Pat's article, Legal Ethics in Decline: The Elite Law Firm, The Elite Law School, and the Moral Formation of the Novice Attorney. The Court intends to distribute the article, which originally appeared in the Minnesota Law Review, to workshops and study groups in Japanese courts.

Tom Shaffer published The Practice of Law with Non-Lawyer Colleagues in Maine, in the July 1999 issue of The Maine Bar Journal. Tom points out that he was admitted to practice in Maine "until further notice."

Dinah Shelton published Reparations to Victims at the International Criminal Court, in the International Criminal Court: Reparations to Victims of Crimes (article 75 of the Rome Statute) and the Trust Fund (article 79), published by the Center on International Cooperation at New York University.

Dinah was quoted in the April 24 issue of The Economist. In the article, entitled To Sue A Dictator, Dinah notes the importance of civil actions seeking to redress human-rights violations. Even if no money is collected, she says, "These cases are very important for the victims. They establish a court record of their suffering, and of the crimes of their abusers."

Eric Smithburn served as a member of the teaching faculty at the 1999 Rocky Mountain Child Advocacy Training Institute in Denver, from June 3 to June 8. The National Institute for Trial Advocacy (NITA), the National Association of Counsel for Children (NACC) and the University of Denver College of Law sponsor the program. In addition to teaching trial advocacy to lawyers from throughout the United States, he presented a lecture entitled, "Laying the Foundation for Exhibits at Trial."

In addition to being invited to Wolfson College Oxford as a Visiting Scholar for the 2000 Spring Semester, Eric was recently elected as a visiting fellow of the Centre for Socio-Legal Studies at Oxford. The Centre comprises several senior Oxford professors who engage in multi-disciplinary scholarly publications and other academic projects. Each year the Centre invites a small number of visiting fellows to participate in the activities of the Centre.

Eric’s latest book (which he describes as a "fun project") is entitled The American Tourist Guide to English Words: Words, Expressions and Slang. It will be published in February-March by Pentland Press in the U.K. The book is an illustrated glossary of approximately 2,500 words and expressions that might puzzle Americans traveling in Britain. Says Eric: "The book lends credence to George Bernard Shaw’s statement that the English and the Americans are two peoples separated by a common language."

West Publishing Group has just published the 1999 Pocket Parts to Eric’s two-volume treatise, Indiana Family Law. He has a contract with West to produce a third volume in the year 2000.
